

Ready for the summer holiday? Filters checked?

The vehicle inspection prior to the vacation includes a filter check – for a relaxed journey of workshop customers.

March 2024

With summer being just a few weeks away, it's time for holiday checks at the workshops. In addition to brakes, batteries, wipers, tires, the lighting system and oil, the check of the filters should not be skipped.

Bodyguards for the engine

In case a vehicle's filters are not replaced in due time, the consequences can be quite unpleasant.

- Reduced engine performance
- Early wear
- Increased pollutant emissions

Replacing filters regularly

Filters should always be replaced according to the replacement intervals specified by the vehicle manufacturers. Prior to long holiday trips, upcoming service intervals should thus be observed carefully. In case of imminent due dates, replacement ahead of schedule could be a good option.

Comfort and health

New cabin filters for example provide clear benefits on long journeys and increased health protection for the vehicle occupants. They also support the proper function of the air conditioning system – a key feature particularly for trips to countries with rather hot climate and important for the driver's comfort and power of concentration. When replacing cabin filters, upgrading them by the FILTER+pro may increase their positive effect on both health and wellbeing inside the cabin even further. Harmful and unpleasant-smelling gases are neutralized and the coordinated layers of the FILTER+pro also work effectively against bacteria, viruses, mold and allergens.

New filters provide better protection

Fuel filters reliably separate particles and water from fuel and contribute to optimum engine performance. Oil filters remove soot and metal particles from engine oil and improve the engine lubrication. Air filters clean the intake air thus protecting engine components downstream. If the change intervals for these types of filters have been reached or will be due soon after the customer's vacation, new filters could ease the vehicle's functions and relieve the pumps on long trips.
